

University opens up

STELLENBOSCH University is unlocking its intellectual property vault, giving developers free access to its technologies.

Universities are mandated to patent intellectual property generated through research, but often lack funds to develop ideas.

Stellenbosch's technology transfer firm InnovUS, "provides private sector entities with an opportunity to introduce new technology into their businesses with minimal effort and no up-front cost", says CEO Anita Nel.